GORMAN'S GRAND DEPOT

ARCHBALD.

Mrs. T. J. Healy and daughter, Nora, Mrs. Michael Walsh, Mrs. P. F. Spellman, Misses Mary Foote, Alice and Agnes Swenson, Jennie O'Boyle and Maggie Carroll attended the commencement exercises of St. Cecilia's academy yesterday.

Misses Teresa and Katie Lally, of Laurel street, were in Scranton yesterday.

Mrs. M. Kearney has moved into her new dwelling on South Railroad street. Ex-Commissioner William Franz was in town yesterday.

Charles Rockwell, of Providence, called on business men here yesterday afternoon.

The Democratic convention at Jersey yesterday was attended largely by citizens of this borough. The result, which disappointed to some, was the electoral outcome of the triangular rivalry that had been in progress among the Archbald candidates for the past few weeks. Each of the three candidates had delegates at the convention, and if it were possible to unite their forces it is likely it would take more than one ballot to effect the nomination of Mr. Burke. As it was, however, just enough delegates to make his nomination. Mr. Feeley, of this place, was Mr. Burke's most formidable rival, and he made a very creditable fight, considering the short time he had been in the campaign.

The Carbondale Traction company has a force of men stringing a feed wire in this borough and they expect to have the work done before Friday. It is said the company intends to build a pavilion at the southern terminus for the accommodation of those who may have occasion to wait for cars on the Carbondale or Scranton lines. As yet no effort has been made to connect the line at the gravity track, the agreement between the Traction company and the Delaware and Hudson company not having been signed. The delay is said to be due to the Delaware and Hudson company, which is not satisfied with the terms proposed by the Traction people. During the past two days the Scranton Traction company has been ballasting its track as far as the Archbald boundary, and it is likely that cars will be running so far next Sunday.

So many conflicting rumors have been current during the past week concerning the sale or transfer of the Carbondale line that it is difficult to get at the exact truth. It was given out that the road was sold last Thursday, but this was denied later. Again it was said the sale was made yesterday morning and again it is denied. A member of the company told THE TRIBUNE correspondent yesterday afternoon that the road had not been sold, but he intimated that it would very willingly be parted with provided that some responsible purchaser could be found, who would give the company what it asked. There is an air of mystery about the business that lends color to the rumors that have been so widely circulated within the past few days.

BURKE AGAIN THE NOMINEE

Named for Third Time by the Fourth District Legislative Convention.

FIRST BALLOT DID THE WORK

Mr. Burke Received One More Vote Than His Three Opponents Combined—Some Humorous Phases of the Convention—Motion to Adjourn for Dinner Precipitated a Lively Row—Convention Adjourned Without Adopting Resolutions—The Committee Was Late.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

THE Honorable Michael J. Burke is no tyro at the great American game of politics. He proved that today when for the third time he was nominated as the candidate of the Democrats for the Fourth district for the state legislature. True there were many Democrats in the district who did not look with favor on Mr. Burke's ambition. They thought that two terms at Harrisburg was quite enough for him, but Mr. Burke was diplomatic and won on the first ballot, having just the necessary twenty-seven votes. Had another ballot been required it is very probable that Mr. Burke would not have been nominated.

The convention was held in Enterprise hall, where it was called to order at 10:45 this morning by James Pidgeon, of Carbondale, chairman of the district standing committee. P. J. McCormack, of Blakely, was chosen chairman of the temporary organization. It was an election of candidates for the legislature. The convention was called to order at 10:45 this morning by James Pidgeon, of Carbondale, chairman of the district standing committee. P. J. McCormack, of Blakely, was chosen chairman of the temporary organization. It was an election of candidates for the legislature.

SOME FEELING ORATORY

M. Foley, of Jefferson township, opposed the motion with great earnestness. The yeas and nays were called and Chairman McCormack decided that the convention wanted to adjourn. Then the Burke men howled for a division which they didn't get. One Burkeite mounted a chair in the middle of the hall and declared in ear-splitting tones: "It's not according to the rules." No one paid any attention to him or seemed to care whether it was parliamentary or not. Mr. Burke was waving the air close to the chairman's platform and demanding a square deal while opponent Mr. Feeley, divested of his coat and with sweat streaming from his chubby face, exhorted the chairman to stand by his decision that the convention had expressed a wish to adjourn. Mr. McCormack did stand by his decision and after the shouting had exhausted themselves, the chairman smiled, propitiated a storm of tobacco juice in the direction of Delegate Walton's face and went to dinner.

The Burke delegates were hot. They knew that if the convention selected a candidate before it adjourned the Honorable M. T. would be the man. In an adjournment they saw a foul conspiracy to wrest the nomination from him. They were fearful of the consequences, as well they might.

WORKING ON THE DELEGATES

Immediately after adjournment Mr. Feeley went to Gavin's hotel in his shirt sleeves and went to work. Delegates were talked to, and in the parlors of the hotel a conference was held between Mr. Feeley and Miles J. McCormack, another Archbald candidate for the nomination. Candidate Cummings' friends were also interviewed. As a result of all this work it was reported before the convention reconvened that a combination had been effected that would carry beat Burke. The candidates were all to allow their names to go before the convention for the first ballot. It was believed that the vote would be then so split up that no choice would result. On the second ballot there would be some one dropped and then the opposition to Burke was to focus on Feeley.

The plan failed because Mr. Burke, foreseeing what would occur, did some quiet figuring and found that he wanted twenty-seven delegates to insure his nomination on the first ballot. He succeeded just that number and they went up to the scratch and voted for him amid the open-eyed amazement of the opposition. It was a great day for the Honorable Michael.

THE CONVENTION RE-ASSEMBLES

At 2:10 p. m. Chairman McCormack mounted the platform to call the afternoon session to order. Many of the delegates were in the hall and others were out on the sidewalk. McCormack thrust his head through a window and rent the air with a sharp, shrill whistle; thereupon the tardy delegates flocked into the room. The committee on contested seats reported in favor of seating Joseph Alexander from the second district of Fall township. His seat was contested by Michael Brennan.

The yeas and nays were called on a motion to adopt the report and Mr. McCormack decided that it was adopted, although there was no perceptible difference between the volumes of sound that greeted the call for the yeas and nays. A division was called for when Thomas Walton of Archbald, who was sitting in the front row with his coat off and his shirt open at the throat, jumped to his feet.

posing candidates were named many delegates voted against continuing the temporary organization in power, and when Mr. McCormack declared himself and his associates elected there was a howl. Another division was asked for, but the chairman decided that it could not be allowed unless opposition candidates were named. He made a speech saying he was "no man's man," had no interests to serve and was desirous only of being impartial.

R. W. Cooney, Orator Foley and M. J. Larkin were nominated for chairman, but all declined and the temporary organization stood for want of opposition, although several of the delegates declared that Chairman McCormack had been carrying things with too high a hand. Mr. McCormack reacted these aspirations with silent contempt and called for nominations for legislature. John McCabe, of Carbondale, nominated M. T. Burke, of Carbondale; P. H. McKeever, of Fall township, nominated Miles J. McCandrew, of Archbald; Thomas J. Nealon, of Olyphant, named J. B. Cummings, of the same place, and M. J. Larkin, of Carbondale, placed in nomination James J. Feeley, of Archbald.

NO MAN'S MAN SPEAKS

When the nominations were made Chairman McCormack, who a few minutes before had proudly declared that he was "no man's man," claimed the attention of the convention and without going through the formality of vacating the chair made an eloquent speech seconding the nomination of Mr. Cummings. It was a most unusual proceeding, but it was a success. A vote was then taken and resulted as follows: Burke, 27; Feeley, 11; Cummings, 9; McCandrew, 6. That gave Mr. Burke a majority of one over his opponents. The opposition was discomfited, surprised and crushed. Mr. Burke rose to the air with their collar and necked his best efforts to prevent the fourth district from being divided in the next apportionment.

RESOLUTIONS WERE LATE

The convention then dissolved by mutual consent, without motion, and as the delegates were leaving the hall the committee of resolutions handed in its report, but no action was taken on it. The resolutions beseech congress to do something to remedy the present national ills and commend President Cleveland for his firmness. Governor Feltus and Mr. Burke are also commended.

Mr. Burke's candidacy is not likely to awaken much enthusiasm in portions of the district.

Criticizing a Young Lady

"She would be a pretty girl for but one thing." "What's that?" asked Charles. "George—her face is always covered with purple and red blotches." "Charles—Oh, that's easily enough disposed of. I'll tell you the remedy myself, but I caught on to the trouble one day, and got rid of it in no time." "George—What was it?" "Charles—Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, it's the best blood corrector. The governor had rheumatism so bad that you could hear his hollow clear across the country every time he moved. He tried it and you know what an athletic old gent he is now. If somebody would give Miss Daisy a pointer, she would thank them after wards. All the drug stores sell it."

REMARKED BY R. G. Joiner, of Allen P. O. Hillsdale, Mich.: "Nothing gave my rheumatism such quick relief as Dr. Cassell's Kidney and Bladder Pills. I believe it infallible for rheumatism."
